Local Ladies Win

City 'Spil Prizes

Congratulations are surely due to the local lady curlers for their success last week at the Edmonton bonspiel, whereby the two girls which journeyed thither earned the second and third prizes in the Visitors' event.

Recipients of cut glass vases as the second prize, Mrs. Nordstrom's rink consisted of Mrs. E. Nordstrom, Mrs. Peterson, Mrs. Street and Miss Bissmore, while bringing home sewing baskets as third winners were Mrs. Lane, Mrs. Glass, Mrs. Robinson and Mrs. J. Wylie.

Again, congratulations!

Local Vets B.E.S.L. Elect '40 Officers

On Friday last the Wainwright Branch of the Canadian Legion held their annual general meeting which, despite inclement weather and uncertain road conditions, was fairly well attended. This also took the form of a Zone Meeting and representatives of the Chauvin Branch were present to hear Zone Commander G. Ken Watts, of Vegreville, deliver an inspiring address.

Comrade Watts gave a few highlights regarding the new Legion activities and particularly in connection with the Canadian Legion War Services, Inc., which, acting under Dominion charter, has been established in Canada and overseas, including actual theatres of war, to engage in the work of entertainment, sports, the provision of educational and religious facilities and to operate canteens and generally render assistance of an auxiliary nature to His Majesty's armed forces.

The officers elected were: Hon. pres., Rev. Dr. Stevens; President, G. Glass; vice president, G. Grogan; executive committee from last year, J. Alderman, H. Brunner, J. Grant and R. Tierney; and newly elected, C. T. Lally, F. Poulton, W. Shaw and H. Wilson.

Local Pucksters Defeat Holden

In the league game played here on Friday night last, Wainwright doubled the score of the Holden boys in a fast, clean encounter.

The scoring opened from a nice passing play by McKay and Torg, when the latter managed to out-guess the Holden goalie. Shortly after this play, Torg evaded the score for the visitors by converting a nice pass which Hutchinson had no chance to stop.

In the second frame, Walker scored on a nice solo rush and Hardy hit the twine with a tricky pass from Bond, but the Holden boys put on the pressure, with the result that two counters were slipped past the Wainwright goalie by Good and Grogan.

At the opening of the third frame, Torg snapped a goal in from the face-off, and Lynch added another to the tally. Jannet made the score read 6-3 by hanging in a clever snap-back from Torg at centre, and that proved the final count.

Schmitt proved a wide-awake referee despite edging tempers at times he kept things well under control.

Canadian Boy Scouts Prepare For Public Service Work

Living up to their motto, "Be Prepared", these scout leaders of the Toronto Centre area have completed a course in ambulance work as part of their training in public service work as a war measure and are now qualified to give instructions in first aid work. Similar instructions are being given to scouts all over Canada as they prepare themselves for whatever public service they may be required for. Standing, left to right: H. Power, R. Durke, F. Sparling, P. Green,

W. Edwards, A. Halliday, J. Taylor and J. Milne. Sitting, left to right, A. Edmundson, T. J. Lake, district scoutmaster; Dr. A. B. Wright, examiner; F. Guise-Bagley and W. Keachie.

W.I. Discontinues Child Welfare Work

The regular meeting of the Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. W. Lytle. Sixteen members answered the roll call with suggestions for 1940. The president, Mrs. J. W. Stuart, presided.

The Child Welfare committee reported that there were 32 boxes of Christmas cheer sent out at the holiday season and also 29 hampers. White gifts, numbering 94, supplied by the various churches of the town, were also distributed. Candy made by some girls was sent to the children at the hospital.

It was duly moved and carried that the Child Welfare work be discontinued, and the secretary for same having resigned, it was moved that a hearty vote of thanks be given Mrs. Walker for her work in this connection.

Mrs. Smart donated the gift, which was won by Mrs. Lassell. A dainty lunch was served by the hostesses, Mrs. Walker and Mrs. Street.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Smart on February 14th, the roll call to be answered by a valentine.

On December 19th, a pleasant surprise was held for Mrs. Anderson, one of the members, who left to make her home at Hardisty. An address was read by Mrs. Stuart and the guest was later presented with a lovely handbag and wished God-speed by her fellow members.

Mrs. Anderson sittingly replied, after which a dainty lunch was served and a social time spent.

World's Longest Glacier Ski Run

Jasper Park.—The longest glacier ski run in the world is now available to park visitors. The run, from the summit of Mount Snow Dome, altitude 11,240 feet, to the nose of the Athabasca Glacier, near the Columbia Icefield Chalet, is approximately seven miles in length and descends some 5,000 vertical feet.

Alberta Opens Tourist Campaign

Alberta will make a strong bid for record tourist traffic this year, according to word received by officials of the Alberta Motor Association.

In order to finance this campaign, the provincial government has decided to provide $22,000 immediately for publicity material.

This material is to be distributed as rapidly as possible and it is hoped to start this month.

Attractive publicity booklets will tell of Alberta's varied appeals to the U.S. tourists, many of whom now are planning their vacation trips.

The completion of the Jasper-Lake Louise scenic highway, and finishing of the Big Bend link of the Trans-Canada highway, between Golden and Revelstoke, B.C., are expected to usher in a new era of tourist business in Alberta.

Thousands of tourists' cars will enter the province this year, bringing new cash business and creating greater purchasing power.

Every car that enters the province means a substantial outlay for gasoline and oil, primary products of the farm, such as eggs, meats, butter and milk, besides business for stores, hotels and lodging places.

Riding on the wheels of these tourists' cars will be new business for Alberta, which has long been beckoned to visitors from south of the border.

Warmly Human Humorous Drama

A straight line story of events in the unremarkable married life of two unremarkable young persons to whom only one remarkable thing happens, is booked for the Elite next Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Dropped down in the current welter of stupendous, extraordinary, magnificent and extraneously smart pictures, this fine-spun length of home-spun is refreshing as a breath of spring.

As counted in terms of settings, color, location trips and such, "Made For Each Other" does not scream its overhead. But as counted in terms of fine acting, graphic character portrayal, potent dialogue and learned direction it foots up an impressive total. Single sequences are built with the impeccable finesse of a Lunt interlude. Time after time accumulated tension is relaxed a split second before breaking point. Humor of a dozen kinds, from sly digs at pomposity to broad caricatures of the servant problem, contributes to the foundation upon which a shrewdly melodramatic climax finally is superimposed.

The young couple are warmly likeable, the mother-in-law is not a shrew the boss is more practical than hard-hearted, and it's possible for the on-looker to sympathize with all hands at all times.

This is Carole Lombard's first serious performance in more than two years and critics claim that it is a better piece of work than any of her comic appearances. James Stewart takes the male lead.

Parents! Beware Of Ice Streets

What might have proved a serious accident was narrowly averted one day last week, when a small child dashed into the street, pursued by a playmate, and slipped and slid under a car which the driver could not stop owing to the icy street. Parents should warn their children of the danger of playing on the street. Happily no harm was done to the youngster.

St. Andrew's Pres. Church Ann. Meet'g

The annual meeting of the St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church was held in the main auditorium of the church on January 8th, with a fair attendance.

Dr. Stevens, the pastor, presided and conducted the devotional exercises.

Mr. J. Patterson was elected Secretary of the meeting.

Encouraging reports were read from the various departments. The Kirk Session's report showed that by reviving the membership roll there was a slight decrease, although five had been received on profession of faith.

The Managing Board showed that the budget had been met in full and the Ladies' Aid had a splendid financial report, showing that all outstanding debts had been paid or cancelled and now, for the first time in the 30 years' history of the church, the church and manse property was clear of debt.

Splendid reports were given by the Sunday School, the Y.P.S., the Girls' Guild, Mission Band and Choir. A Women's Missionary Society had been organized during the year and reported progress.

A pleasing report was given of a summer Sunday School and service at Sydenham, conducted by Mrs. Stevens. An encouraging report was also given of the church service and Sunday School at Gilt Edge, which still continues.

Votes of thanks were tendered to retiring officers and to the different departments and also the pastor and his wife for services rendered.

At the close of the meeting the friends adjourned to the social room for conversation and the ladies served a dainty lunch.

A feeling of optimism prevailed and the hope is entertained of making "Wainwright and Gilt Edge a self-supporting charge."

REGULAR MEETING HOSPITAL BOARD

The regular monthly meeting of the Board of Trustees of the Wainwright Municipal Hospital District was held at the hospital on January 18, when there were present Chairman J. Fuller and Trustees J. D. Collette, C. Bessie, D. Gaudin, and C. Gold. The minutes of the last meeting were adopted.—Carried.

Dead End Kids Again Perform

In this day and age of worldly change, either backward or forward, according to one's point of view, it was a little too much to hope that the slugging, slugging school of the "Dead End Kids" would remain the same unspooled, rough, tough hoodlums.

In their latest production, "The Angels Wash Their Faces," the lads do not go to the other extreme, but in comparison with their past performances the youngsters seem almost to sprout the beginning of wings. Yet this transformation does not in any way water down the entertainment punch.

The picture does not bear any connection with its pictorial predecessor of angelic appellation, "Angels With Dirty Faces."

The player panel gives foremost mention to Miss Ann Sheridan. Additional supporting names of recognized merit in the Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday picture at the Elite include Bonita Granville, Frankie Thomas and Ronald Reagan.

Local Rebekahs Honor Founder

Following their regular meeting on Thursday evening, the members of Adeline Rebekah Lodge entertained in celebration of the birthday of Thomas Widley, founder of the Order. Games and contests of various descriptions were heartily joined in, making a pleasant evening's entertainment for a happy gathering of sisters and brothers.

A dainty lunch was served later in the evening by members of the social committee, and was thoroughly enjoyed.

Official Minutes Battle River M.D. Council

The regular meeting of the Council of the Municipal District of Battle River was held on Thursday, January 10, with a full council present and a large attendance of the public.

Moved by Coun. Stewart—That the minutes of meeting of December 14 be approved as read.—Carried.

Moved by Coun. Collette—That this council lease to I. E. and Roy Woods the W.V. 12 and All 12-46-7 for a period of one year as from April 1, 1940, under the same conditions and terms as 1939 lease accepting the amount of summerfall to be done, which is to be 100 acres.—Carried.

Moved by Coun. Smallwood—That this Council sell to P. J. Harvey the N.W. 22-4-2, subject to the approval of the Minister, for $600.00, terms and conditions as follows: $30.00 cash, being 5% of the purchase price, no interest on the remaining principal balance as one-third share of crops grown on said land over a period of

FEEDING THE BREEDING FLOCK

At no time in the life of poultry is it more important to feed with the utmost care than just prior to and during the breeding season. To the very exacting demands of heavy egg production are now added those of fertility and hatchability and a high percentage of hatchable eggs is only attained when the nutrition of the breeding stock is at its best, explains H. S. Gutteridge, Poultry Division, Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa. It may be taken for granted that the requirements for egg production must be adequately met since it is important that as many eggs as possible be obtained during the relatively short breeding season. A ration well balanced as to protein, carbohydrates, fats, minerals and vitamins is essential for this purpose. In terms of commonly used feeds this means the use of the common cereals and their by-products. Care should be shown to avoid too fibrous a mixture; animal feeds such as fish meal, meat scrap or skim or buttermilk powder, alone or preferably in combination; mineral foods such as bone meal and oyster shell and vitamins as already contained in the feeds mentioned and in cod liver oil.

The changes required to make such a ration adequate for hatchability are vitamin and mineral in nature. Vitamin D which has an effect upon hatchability is already present in the cod liver oil of the laying ration. Vitamin B₁₂, which is very important for hatchability, is found in the following substances in approximately the numerical proportions stated, namely, dried yeast 35, dried whey 80, dried skim milk 20, alfalfa meal, dehydrated 16, alfalfa meal, sun-cured 11, white fish meal 10, fish meal 7, and most scraps 6. Since the cereal grains and by-products are relatively poor sources of this vitamin a combination of, or one of the above must be used for this purpose. It is common practice to increase the milk powder content of the mash or to give all the skim or buttermilk the birds will drink, for this purpose, but availability and cost will largely determine what substances are used.

In minerals it has been found that manganese is necessary to good hatchability and is not plentiful in common foods, therefore having to be provided. This can best be done by adding powdered manganese sulphate at the rate of one quarter pound per ton of mash to the mixture. Since this is a small quantity it must first be thoroughly mixed with a few handfuls of mash, this mixed with a larger quantity and so on until a thorough mixing is achieved. It should be noted that both breeding males and females should receive this breeding ration and for a period of three to four weeks before and during the breeding season. For further information upon feeding matters write, Dominion Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

Recipe for 1940

(Stewart McKay, C.I.C.A.'s "Good Morning, Neighbor" announcer, broadcast this novel recipe New Year's Day and has since received several hundred letters asking for copies. We reproduce it here in case you wish to clip it for your scrap book.)

Mark the ingredients of 1940 carefully and use them widely. Take 13 fine, full-grown months. See that these are free from all old memories of bitterness, hate and jealousy. Cleanse them of every clinging spite; pick off all specks of pettiness and littleness; in short, see that these months are freed from all the past—leave them as fresh and clean as when they first came from the great storehouse of Time. Cut these months into 31 equal parts. This batch will keep for just one year. Do not attempt to make up the whole batch at one time (so many spoil the entire lot in this way) but prepare one day at a time, as follows: Into each day put 13 parts of faith, 11 of patience, 10 of courage, 9 of work, 8 of hope, 7 of fidelity, 6 of liberality, 5 of kindness, 4 of rest (leaving this out is like leaving the oil out of the salad—don't do it), 3 of prayer, 2 of meditation and 1 well-selected resolution. If you have no conscientious scruples, put in about a teaspoonful of good spirits, a dash of fun, a pinch of folly, a sprinkling of play and a heaping cup of good humor. Pour into the whole, love ad libitum and mix with a vim. Cook thoroughly in a fervent

SALLY'S SALLIES

Science Finds Why Women
Stand Cold Better Than Men

The average woman can stand extremes of temperature better than the average man because her body is wrapped in a thicker layer of "insulating" tissue. This tissue also accounts for her more softly rounded figure. The thicker the insulation is, the more comfortable it will keep the body. For the same reason, houses equipped with insulating materials, three to four inches in thickness, are more comfortable than those equipped with only one half to one inch thick insulation. The effectiveness of house insulation can be likened to a heat, garnish with a few smiles and a sprig of joy; then serve with quietness, unselfishness and cheerfulness, and a Happy New Year is a certainty.

prove an interesting matter to those who are called upon to "foot the bill"; for although matters over which the Town Council presided throughout the past year have all passed along very smoothly, the bank balance which remains to the credit of the town has only been accomplished by the most judicious spending of the ratepayers' money, consistent with improvements as needed.

Far too often Mr. Average Citizen is well content to sit back and "let the other fellow do it" and later declare himself fully dissatisfied when the outcome does not match his pre-studies views—although many times

no one is given any inkling as to what those "views" may be.

On Friday evening next, the annual reports by the Mayor and the several Councillors will no doubt prove both interesting and instructive, and it is possible that actions previously thought dubious may be explained and fully justified. In any case, any matter to be threshed out can be much better dealt with at the meeting than on the street corner—where unfortunately so many matters of importance are "hung, drawn and quartered".

At the same meeting, too, those responsible for the Wainwright public schools, as well as the town's representative on the local hospital board, will render an account of their past year's stewardship.

Although the evening should prove a profitable one for all concerned, and one which every ratepayer should attend.

THE EARLY (?) CLOSING

QUESTION

Yesterday afternoon (Wednesday)

I noticed again that very few store keepers paid any attention to the half-holiday by-law that is in effect and is supposed to be punishable by a fine if not respected.

Go to most any small or large town and you will find a half-holiday by-law in effect and respected as such, by the storekeepers and by the ratepayers; but in dear old Wainwright, the powers that be use up their valuable time and the ratepayers' money to make by-laws—and that seems to be as far as their interest goes as such, however, on talking with a few of the storekeepers—without exception—each and every one seems to be waiting and watching for the action of someone else, and on it goes!

When I talk with the powers that be, I find that they are not even remotely interested and apparently want me to be a detective or a policeman. That reminds me, Mr. Editor:

we do have a policeman in this town.

don't we? I imagine that he would have power to see that the law is carried out in this town and to this law!

If he does not do so, who or what holds him back from the execution of his apparent duty.

To my idea, the law-makers in Wainwright are passing up a lot of good chances for making some easy money in the form of fines from the law-breakers.

However, it all leaves much to one's imagination, and personally, I wonder!

FEEDING OVERSEAS BOUND CANADIAN TROOPS
WAS BIG JOB FOR THIS KITCHEN ON WHEELS

Out of this commissary car about 1,000 meals when some 500 Canadian soldiers bound for overseas and now in camp "somewhere in England" travelled to the seaboard from Montreal by a special Canadian National Railways troop train.

The car was typical of those that accompanied the train carrying the men of the first contingent to their ships. Six of these C.N.R. commissary cars have been used in the movement of troops over the lines of the National system. At one end was a butcher shop, at the other a bakery shop and behind the counter stood 14 members of the railway's dining car staff—bakers, cooks, stewards, chefs and waiters. Pailful parties of eight soldiers served each of the 12 cars, collecting the rations and taking them to the troops in special containers.

According to the comments of the men, the food was good. And it was plentiful. Nearly a hundredweight of rolled oats for porridge, for instance, for this one train; 81 gallons of milk; 150 dozen eggs, 105 pounds of bacon; 185 pounds of sausages.

A vegetable peeler rolled out 14 pounds of potatoes a minute. In all, 850 pounds of potatoes were consumed; 300 pounds of turnips, 400 pounds of carrots, 100 of onions and 200 of cabbage.

Meat ran to more than 1,000 pounds and some of it went on the train in cans.

The soldiers drank 175 gallons of coffee (about 2,800 cups); 56 pounds of tea disappeared and 500 pounds of sugar.

Prunes? By all means. Three hundred and twenty pounds of them. Scores of pies and cakes baked on the train went the way of all pies and cakes. Fifty-five four-pound tins of jams and marmalade vanished too.

Canadian Aircraft Factories Speeding Production to Meet Increased Demands

While the Royal Air Force continues to prove its superiority in battle against the air force of retund Heiman Goering, Canadian aircraft factories are working at top speed to produce the many airplanes needed for the army of aviators to be trained in Canada under the empire air training scheme. These scenes, taken at one of the DeHavilland aircraft manufacturing company's plants, are typical of scenes in a score of other aircraft factories across the Dominion. These men and women are busily engaged in turning out Tiger Moths for training purposes. In the near future a new ship will roll out of this factory each day.

PAPER PRICES INCREASE

Effective January 10, all white wove, cartridge and bond envelopes increased 10 per cent. Tag manilla and coated book papers increased 70c per cwt., and gummed paper increased 30c per M. This is the second advance in two weeks.

THE DIAL REVIEW
by Walter Dales

Many cynical folks read fan magazines and radio columns with one thought in mind: "This stuff isn't true; it's just a lot of silliness invented to publicize the Big Show!" The reader who attacks the situation that way misses a lot of fun. I like to accept the little anecdotes I read as gospel truth.

Here's one about Orson Welles, heard on the Campbell Playhouse program from CJCA. It seems the young man has turned hill-billy. The pressure of radio and film work caused him to give up his Brentwood mansion last week and seek more privacy in a modest cabin somewhere in the hills. "Ah'm jest old Jester Welles," phoned Orson Tuesday to his friend Bernard Hermann. "Ah found a little log cabin up Mulholland way built by Dan'l Boone. Just a square room 'o' logs, a patch of carrots, a rain barrel and a smoky stove donated by mah faithful press man, Herb Drake. I expect to be very happy here—for about 24 hours."

When you were listening to Wendy Barrie on a recent "Silver Theatre" production from CJCA, her mother, Mrs. Nell Barrie, was killing time waiting for Wendy by attending the program, "Spelling Bee-Liner," giving her name as Mrs. Glynn, of London. She mislabeled the first word.

The fact that the Band of His Majesty's Grenadier Guards have had grand success with their "On Parade" program, comes as no great surprise. The Band has long been noted for its brilliant rendition of marches and regimental tunes, selections from musical comedies, light opera and favorite ballads. "The Guardsmen," five of Canada's most outstanding singers, are also heard each week in distinctive vocal arrangements of familiar music. Captain J. J. Gagnier, conductor, is a noted musician and composer. On numerous occasions he has been guest conductor of the Dominion's Band, Royal's Band, and also of the Marine, Army and Navy Bands of Washington. So there is little reason to wonder why CJCA fans have so highly praised the program, "On Parade," heard Thursdays at 8:30 p.m.

Last week Ed Bryant made a real hit with his Capitol Theatre spelling bee called, "So You Think You Can Spell?" He prepared a few smart riddles that earned hearty laughs from contestants and audience alike. Try your hand at a few of them.

Q.—When Adam and Eve were driven from the Garden of Eden, what did they do?

A.—They relayed Cain.

Q.—What is always broken before it is used?

A.—An egg.

Q.—What word do women like best?

A.—The last word.

The program is heard each Friday, 9:30 to 10:00 p.m., from CJCA, and is broadcasted directly from the Stage of the Theatre.

Canadian showmanship is getting a break on the networks these days. First, The Happy Gang becomes a sponsored feature, and then Rupert Lucas, veteran Canadian producer, is selected as master of ceremonies for the all-Canadian hit show, "Share the We."

And Saturday nights at 6:00 p.m. feature need takes a back seat to NBC, CBS or anyone else.

The art of brewing was known and practised for many hundred years before the Christian era. In 450 B.C., we are told that the Egyptians being without vines, made a wine or beer from corn. AMONG THE OLD-TIMERS

"REMINISCENCES OF OTHER DAYS"

TEN YEARS AGO

Mr. George Harper, who has been on sick leave for some time past, was able to return to his work as C.N.R. agent here.

The country roads are entirely blocked in all directions and motor traffic stopped.

A veteran of the war, Mr. Frank Glenn passed away at his farm home early Thursday morning at the age of 50 years.

A pleasant time was spent at the whist drive sponsored by the Rebekahs on Friday evening and the following were winners of the prizes: Mrs. E. Tovey, Mrs. W. Knowler, Mrs. W. Arkwright, Mrs. W. Carrell, Mr. J. H. Clifton and Mr. E. E. Tovey.

Following a siege of pneumonia Mr. John (Scotty) Sutherland passed away at the hospital on Friday.

Mr. Harry Bouck, who injured his head about a month ago, is progressing under the special medical treatment he is taking in Edmonton.

FIFTEEN YEARS AGO

Mrs. G. L. Hudson gave a joint recital with Miss Kathleen Power in Edmonton last week under the auspices of the Musical Club.

The Tarpenning home on Second Avenue west was totally destroyed by a fire which broke out from overheated furnace pipes last Friday evening. Nobody was home at the time of the outbreak.

At the last meeting of Adeline Rebekah Lodge, the following officers were installed for the ensuing term: P.N.G., Sister E. Davison; N.G., Sister M. Carrell; V.G., Sister Hovea.

The lady hockeyists entertained the boys of the senior hockey team at a social evening on Friday night when games and dancing made a pleasant evening's entertainment.

Following the removal of Mr. Chas. Ward to the Edmonton offices of the C.N.R., Mr. S. Tovey now fills the chair at the local express office.

A large turnout of mothers accepted the invitation of the W.C.T.U. to a social afternoon at the home of Mrs. G. Pybus on Thursday. Some very instructive talks were given as well as a pleasant time spent socially.

EDGERTON

After such a long spell of mild weather, last week's variety was a trifle hard to take, but at least we are free to crowd around a radiator or stove when we want to, and do not have to stay outdoors fighting in -38° weather like the unfortunate, but valiant, Finns. So we can be truly thankful for all mercies, even if February brings something worse—which, of course, we cannot help hoping it will not.

Several of the younger generation cared little for mere cold on the night of Monday, January 22nd, and sallied forth to Rosedale to attend the wedding dance of Mr. and Mrs. P. C. Redmond, who were married early in December. According to various reports, we understand that a large crowd attended and it was an all-around grand evening.

It is understood that little Graham Brown is making good progress and will soon be able to leave the hospital although he will have to remain in Edmonton under observation for a while yet.

Local hockey teams seem to be hoodooed this season. Twice last week games scheduled to be played at Chauvin were postponed. One on Tuesday was put forward till Thursday owing to severe cold, then when Thursday came it was postponed as a respectful gesture to the family of Mrs. McCluskey, of that district, who passed away during the day.

Cold, winds and what-not did not prevent the Wainwright hockey team coming on Wednesday night and trouncing the local boys to the tune of 9-2. Possibly the weather was to blame, as only a very few fans turned out to support the home team and even an imported orchestra failed to draw much of a crowd to the dance after the game. Those that did attend had a most enjoyable time and oh! what a noise they made when they decided to go home somewhere around 3 a.m.

Mrs. Ambrose Lasell and young son returned on Wednesday after spending a couple of weeks with relatives in Edmonton.

We are sorry to hear that Mrs. Ralph Challenger, Mrs. Don Pawsey and Mrs. P. S. Pawsey have all been on the sick list during the week and hope they will soon be recovered.

A silver tea in aid of the W. A. (Ang.) was held at the home of Mrs. J. A. Barr on Friday afternoon, with Mrs. H. A. Kelly as joint hostess. It is understood that a fair sum was realised in spite of unpleasant weather, which doubtless prevented many from attending.

The junior hockey team was tantalisingly close to victory Saturday last when they visited Ribstone. It was the best game our boys have played so far this season, as indicated by the score, which was tied 7-7 until Ribstone scored the decisive goal in the last few remaining seconds of play.

Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Kelly drove to the city early Sunday last to consult an eye specialist. It seems that a recurrence of eye trouble suffered several weeks ago by Mr. Kelly is the reason for the trip.

Eileen Powsey spent several days with Mrs. Geoff Miles last week while Geoff was away on a business trip, and on Friday evening the Misses Leone and Betty Brangrove were dinner guests at the same home.

Red Cross members are reminded that the regular monthly meeting will take place Saturday next, January 27th, in the United Church. All concerned are urged to make every possible effort to attend.

GREENSHIELDS

Mrs. J. Somick has been in the city for the past week for medical care. We are glad to report that all from this district who were patients at the hospital, have been able to return home.

The dance sponsored by the Green-shields Go-Getters on Friday night was not well attended because of the cold weather, but those present reported a good time.

Miss Marcella Plaster spent the past week in Wainwright, visiting friends.

Miss Elsie Haywood spent a few days visiting in Greenshields.

SHEEPKIN FLATS

Little Louise Tondou spent last week with her grandparents.

Mr. Sinclair and family, of Edmonton, have come to reside on the old Leppé quarter.

The Gilt Edge Guild held their monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. Price Teeter, when the members decided to do their share in Red Cross work.

Mr. Alf Rasmussen has been getting up ice from the river for his ice house.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

"Girl of the Turf"

CHAPTER XXXIX

Cary's short-lived happiness was gone—blotted out like the sun by a dense fog, though she attached her slender thread of hope to Tony's words.

On the way home she told him of her experience with Bob Graves, her trainer, and how Jim Constance had threatened to attack her horses.

"Don't let him frighten you, Cary," Tony said tersely. "I'm on the track of something right now which will make him lose some sleep if it is true and I suspect strongly it is. Joe went over to the stable and reported to me that everything is in order there. Graves wasn't around and I don't believe he'll bother you any more."

"But I still owe him money. He refused what I offered him this morning."

"That's his hard luck," Tony said. "Just keep it on hand in case he should ask for it unexpectedly."

"But what will I do about a trainer? Red Roamer will go stale and he's right at his peak now. He's a good horse, but I don't know how to get things straightened out. David taught me all he knew about horses and I'll do my best."

For Cary the sun was beginning to shine through the fog again.

"Do I or don't I get the job?" She had to wait until she could control her voice, before she spoke. "Oh, Tony, you get it, of course."

He reached out and patted her cheek lightly. "Good. I'll report for work at four in the morning."

"But remember this," she said almost gaily. "You'll have to wait for your pay until I get a purse."

"I can wait," he replied.

Although it was almost one in the morning, when Cary unlocked the door to the apartment, Ivy was waiting for her, a mystery story propped up against her knees.

"You must have had a double murder to keep you up this late," Cary said, as she sank into a chair and lighted a cigarette.

"Yeah, jicky too," Ivy said, yawning. "Was it a large evening, darling?"

"Yes," Cary said, studying the tip of her cigarette. "Is Lucretia in yet?"

"No, and she's out alone somewhere—or maybe I should say she went away from here alone."

"Alone?" Cary said incredulously. "Lucretia never goes out at night alone, Ivy."

"There's always a first time," Ivy said. "She waited for Jim to call, but he didn't. At ten she took a taxi and went places all by herself. Ivy got up. 'Let's not hold a wake for her, Cary. She'll come straggling in with the milkman.'"

Cary blew a neat smoke ring and said, "You go ahead, Ivy. I'll be with you in a minute." Ivy started to say something, then thought better of it and went off to her bedroom.

Left alone, Cary felt that she could not at that hour, maybe two hours, simply waiting for Lucretia to come home. Her world was slipping away from her and she had to do something about it. She went to the telephone and called Jim's hotel.

"Mr. Constance went out about ten," she was told. "No, no one was with him. He went alone."

Lucretia, Cary thought, could have met him somewhere about that time. She had the impulse to call Tony but at that moment she heard Lucretia's key in the latch.

"Hello, pet," Lou said carelessly, coming into the room. Cary looked up at her with wide, unhappy eyes.

"Lou—is anything wrong?" Cary ventured in a small voice.

"Do I look as if something was wrong?" Lucretia laughed, but the sound was unnatural—too high pitched. She tried to light a cigarette but her hand shook so that Cary struck a match and held it for her. "Thanks, darling. Why don't you go to bed, so you'll be beautiful tomorrow?"

"I guess I will," Cary said miserably helpless. She knew it was useless to try to get anything out of Lucretia.

When she went into her room she found Ivy still awake.

"No one killed, I suppose," Ivy asked in a guarded voice.

"No," Ivy snapped out her light and turned over. "Then crawl into bed and be thankful that she's home again."

Cary tried to tuck that thought into her mind as she got into bed.

Lucretia right now was safe in her own bedroom, probably putting cream and lotion into her already flawless skin. Most likely Cary had been unnecessarily alarmed.

One thing vaguely comforted Cary. Jim Constance had not called to take her to dinner, as he had done nearly every night since they came to Hollywood. Cary's spirits faintly lifted.

Low would not tolerate neglect from any man—not matter how large his bank statement.

Cary watched the car lights from the street below safe in the ceiling.

"Tomorrow was another day. She would meet it as it came. Now she wanted rest from the devastating unhappiness of her thoughts."

It was nine o'clock the next morning when she was awakened as Ivy gently shook her and said in a guarded voice, "Tony—on the phone."

The sound of that name instantly drove the sleep from Cary's eyes. She swung out of bed and ignored slippers and robe as she hurried into the living room. Tony's voice was tense.

"Jim Constance got the jump on me, Cary, and attached the horses."

Cary leaned against the table to keep herself steady, but her voice was steady, surprisingly steady when she said, "Wait there, Tony. I'm coming out. I'll get a car."

"There's nothing you can do right now, Cary, but if you insist I'll send Joe in for you."

CHAPTER XXXX

Cary was ready and impatiently waiting in the lower corridor when Joe drove up in Anthony's car. She ran down the steps and he held the door open for her.

"What's going on, Joe?"

"Not much of anything, Miss Morgan," he said, and she knew by his tone that he was going to be as annoyingly non-committal as usual. Yet she instinctively felt that back of his abrupt words lay interest in her bordered on sympathetic understanding.

If Tony placed so much faith in Joe then Cary must be all right, she thought. So she shut out the back of her mind the questions that were tumbling over each other to be asked as Joe drove slowly on the cautious side.

"Could you take it a bit faster?" Cary ventured.

"Nope," Joe said with decision. "Would—would you like to have me drive? Perhaps I'm more used to this traffic."

"I know you are," he said, "but then I know you cost $40 to replace, not to mention the other fellow's."

Cary bit her lip and looked straight ahead. She tried to tell herself this was probably one of the occasions she would look back upon in later years and laugh at. Now she had to fight hard to keep back the tears. An age seemed to pass before Joe turned into the gravelled road leading to the turquoise-colored buildings that were the Santa Anita race track.

Almost immediately she saw Tony coming toward them. He was bare-headed and his crisp dark hair picked up bits of sunlight. His white shirt was open at the neck and his sleeves were rolled up on tanned arms. As he came up to the car, he smiled broadly. Only his eyes, darkly alight with excitement, signalled danger ahead.

"I didn't think Jim would have the nerve to pull a thing like this," he said, "but I see I misjudged him."

"It looks as if I must swallow my medicine and like it no matter how bitter," Cary said wryly. "I'm sorry I got you mixed up in all this."

"Forget that, will you?" he said sharply. "I'm mixed up in this because I wanted to be." He put one hand on her arm and she felt the fingers close tightly. "I'm seeing you through. Remember that." His dark eyes narrowed slightly and she had the quick thought that Anthony Garth loved a good fight. "I'll drive Joe over to Englewood. Then I'm going to see Jim Constance."

Joe got into the back seat and Tony took the wheel. Before he had time to pull away, another car slipped into the parking space next to him. Cary looked up and sucked in her breath at what she saw. She said in a near-whisper, "There's Jim now!"

Jim, recognizing Cary, got out of his car and came toward her. "Hello, little. I've been waiting to see you."

But his face went choleric when he looked beyond her at Tony. Cary glanced quickly at Tony and saw his face was pale beneath its tan. His hands gripped the wheel with terrific pressure, as if he did not dare let go for fear they would grasp something else with that pent-up force.

"You two know each other, I believe," Cary said, and was surprised at the sound of her own voice, so small and far away.

"Yes, we've met before," Jim said, obviously struggling to regain his composure. His red lips had gone loose and the fat cigar, broken in his hand, fell to the ground.

"Yes, we've met."

If Cary had not known it was Tony speaking, she would not have recognized his voice at all. It made a hissing sound like water on red coals.

"And I wanted to see you again, Jim—about the attachment on Miss Morgan's horse."

"Maybe you're sticking your nose into something that doesn't concern you, my boy. This business is strictly between Cary and me."

He looked to Cary for confirmation but she set her lips into a thin, red line. In that moment she probably looked more like Lucretia than ever.

"She and I understand each other perfectly," Jim went on. Cary could sense the tenseness of Tony's body. Fear of what seemed about to happen terrified her and made her throat ache.

"Jim," Tony said slowly, his words evenly spaced and clipped. "You are going to lift that attachment and be quick about it too. The stewards are going to be interested to know that you are part owner of the Spengler bookie."

That, Cary remembered with start, was the place where she had placed her $500 bet on Red Roamer, and Jim had advised her to do it, too.

"And they would like to know that you own Rex Garth. But, of course, a bookie never races under his own name. That's against the rules, you know."

"You can't prove a thing," Jim said, but his face had gone dead white. His lips were like huge blood blisters.

"And if you try to get funny—"

"Threats sometimes call for a lot of explaining afterwards," Tony warned. "You probably wouldn't like to do any explaining, Jim."

He waited for the full force of his words to fall. Then he said, "I'm driving Miss Morgan back to town. When I return in a couple of hours, maybe you will have forgotten about that attachment. No money business, either, unless you want some fine-looking plate work in the front of your handsome mouth."

He put the car into gear and rolled away, leaving Jim Constance standing there in the whirl of dust. But it was not until they were on Huntington Drive, well on their way back to town, that Cary could find voice to ask, "Tony, how did you know those things about Jim?"

He flashed her a brief smile and said, "Cary, darling, I didn't know those things at all. It's something I've suspected for a long time, but I haven't been able to prove anything. There was a stab in the dark. I believe it hit home. Don't you?"

"Happiness" in the coming year.

Happiness, the ancient records seem to reveal, was usually thought of not as prosperity, which is comparatively a recent wish, but as the simplest of all things: sufficient food; for mankind's greatest fear in the past ever has been, and still is today with many, a lack of sufficient food. That is why the Bible has such comforting assurances to us "Feed time and harvest . . . shall not cease."

We on this Continent are fortunate indeed, because we can always enjoy the happiness that flows from an abundance of food; and because we also usually have a surplus, we can enjoy an added happiness if we will see to it that those in other parts of the world who lack food, can obtain easily their needful share of Nature's bounty and abundance.

AL JOLSON

Once Doomed to Die For Want of Ten Cents — He Lived To Tear Up $1,000,000

So far as I know, there is only one actor in America who ever tore up a contract worth a million dollars. Who is he? Well, you ought to know, for you have seen him in pictures, you have sung his songs, you have laughed at his jokes. He made the first full-length talking picture. And he also made the greatest box-office attraction that was ever created in Hollywood—a picture that earned twenty million dollars, an all-time record that has never been approached by any other film.

That picture was The Singing Fool, and the man who starred in it was Al Jolson—Al Jolson to you, Al Jolson to me. Al Jolson once drew a salary of $1,250 a week and he drew it for more than six months without doing a day's work. That means he was paid almost a million dollars for doing absolutely nothing. To be sure, he was ready to perform; but his employers, United Artists, had no script ready to shoot just then; so he played golf and collected a salary that made the income of the President of the United States look like a stenographer's stipend.

Then he did one of the most unexpected and generous acts that has ever brightened the cynical darkness of Hollywood. The depression had just struck. Joseph Schenck, a life-long friend of Jolson's, had lost heavily. There was still more than a million dollars due Al Jolson on his contract; but he tore the contract up and handed it back to Joseph Schenck, head of the United Artists, saying: "Forget it! I'm not doing anything for you and you don't need to pay me any more money."

Al Jolson had tuberculosis when he was a boy. When he went to a free clinic at Bellevue Hospital for treatment, the doctors told him that if he didn't get away to the country at once, he would be dead in six months. The prescription the doctors but when he went to get it, he discovered that he had to pay ten cents for a bottle. He didn't have a dime—so to this day, he has never got the medicine.

He recovered without it, anyhow—and without the doctors. But he has never forgotten how it felt to be doomed to die because he didn't have ten cents. That is why he now spends twenty thousand dollars a year supporting free beds for poor people in a tuberculosis sanatorium in the Adirondacks at Saranac Lake. He has been doing this for eleven years; and he has never seen half of the people whose lives he has saved.

Jolson got his first job on the stage when he was a child—a small part in a play called Children of the Ghetto. He had just one line—he had to rush on to the stage and shout "Kill the Jews!"

His father had a job just then slaughtering cattle in a kosher butcher shop during the week and singing in the synagogue on the Sabbath. So when he heard that his son was shouting in the theatre, "Kill the Jews!" young Jolson's career almost came to an abrupt end.

When Jolson first came to New York, he was penniless, and had to steal a ride from Washington. He was so unsophisticated that when he got to Newark, New Jersey, he thought he was in New York. When he finally got to New York, he slept on park benches and on trucks down by the water front. For days he went hungry. The heat he could hope for then was a chance to "jump for nickels" in some Bowery saloon. He saw the day when Broadway managers leaped at the chance of paying him ten dollars a minute.

Lee Schubert once remarked that there were only two legitimate actors in America who could go into any big town and fill a theatre on the strength of their names alone. One was Fred Stone, and the other was Al Jolson.

MODERN WOMEN

EARLENE WHITE

President of The National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, Inc.

Her great love for birds, which she studied whenever she had a free half hour or more, has resulted in a book by Mrs. Earlene F. Byers, bearing the imprint of The Women's Press. Mrs. Byers is well known in the middle west and the east, having served in Omaha, Chicago, Minneapolis and New York with the Y.W.C.A. A few years ago she retired, since when she has been more than ever devoted to the study of her feathered friends. The small volume entitled "Out-of-Doors with Birds" is not intended as a bird guide but is meant to inspire readers to use their free time to study birds. It is particularly good for people who live in the city where parks offer excellent opportunities to learn about birds.

Intentionally known Chinese women have organized a relief association to aid their country's war sufferers. Everything about the organization is volunteer or donated and everything goes directly to Mrs. Ching Kai-shek in China. The leaders in this group are Mrs. Lin Yu Fang, wife of the author of My Country and My People; Miss Mai-hai Sen, who played in "Lady Freedom's Broom," and is the daughter of Dr. Alfred See, formerly Chinese Ambassador to the United States; Mrs. C. H. Wang, wife of the manager of the Bank of China and sister-in-law of the Chinese Ambassador to Washington; and Mrs. E. C. Li, whose husband is head of a large trading corporation.

Interest in maternal and infant health and welfare has become so widespread that Miss Katharine F. Leonard, chief of the Children's Bureau of the Department of Labor, has decided that such problems must be taken up at a general conference on Better Care for Mothers and Babies in Washington, D.C. She has appointed a planning committee composed of representatives of organizations concerned with this problem.

UPSIDE DOWN CAKE
 Just to keep in character with the turn of world events, an upside-down cake seems to be indicated. This cake is topsyturvy too, but a much more pleasant manifestation of that state than we find reported in the press in connection with international affairs. This is a versatile cake, too. It can be used as a dessert if desired, but the feature which will appeal to housewives most is that it is economical to make. Only one egg is used and all the other ingredients are stand-bys.

Apricot Upside Down Cake
 1 1/4 cups sifted cake flour
 1 1/2 teaspoons double-acting baking powder
 1/2 teaspoon salt
 4 tablespoons butter or other shortening
 1/2 cup granulated sugar
 1 egg, well beaten
 1/2 cup milk

1 teaspoon vanilla
 4 tablespoons butter
 1/2 cup brown sugar, firmly packed
 12 cooked apricots
 Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt, and sift together three times. Cream butter thoroughly, add sugar gradually, and cream together until light and fluffy. Add egg; then flour, alternately with milk, a small amount at a time. Beat after each addition until smooth. Add vanilla.

Melt 4 tablespoons butter in 8-inch iron skillet, or in cake pan, 8x8x2 in. Add brown sugar. Stir until melted. On this arrange apricots, cut-side up. Pour batter over contents of pan. Bake in moderate oven (350° F.) 50 minutes or until done. Loosen cake from sides and bottom of pan with spatula. Serve upside down on dish with apricots on top.

WHEN COLD IS KING

MEALS need to be crisp, cool and succulent to tempt warm weather appetites; and ice—shaved, crushed, or in taste-free, crystal-clear cubes—comes into its own as first aid to summer refreshment.

APPETIZERS
 For a veritable flower-garden of fruit, surround fruit cup or tomato juice cocktail with shaved ice, tinted pale green. To that ice, pour a drop or two of vegetable coloring over it and mix lightly to blend the color.

For an attractive and refreshing cocktail accompaniment, serve color curls, raw carrot sticks and huge ripe olives in a bowl of crushed ice.

FRUITY DRINKS
 Cold drinks are as much a part of summer life as picnics and swimming and if you keep on hand on your emergency shelf, a variety of canned fruit juices, you can serve them at a moment's notice. Moreish fill a tall glass with shaved ice and pour over apricot, grapefruit or pineapple juice or a combination of all three and garnish with a sprig of mint. It's easy to secure as much crushed ice as you want if you have a modern, air-conditioned refrigerator. Just cover one corner of the cake of ice with cheesecloth (to keep the chips from scattering while you work) and with the handy ice pick, chip off the desired amount. Ice cubes—tasteless and crystal-clear—are only a minute's work with the handy little cubes

Nancy Hart's HOME NEWS

CHILDREN'S LUNCHEONS

The windows of the corner drug stores are full of gay pencils, sober die-books and important-looking ads because children of all ages will be trudging back to school. Let lunch kits cleverly equipped with thermos bottles fill a corner of the window too since many children carry their lunch with them.

Of course there are thousands of schools throughout the country which provide cafeterias directed by women especially trained in nutrition and lunch room management where healthful lunches, carefully planned and prepared may be purchased for a small sum. These cafeterias relieve the mother from the actual work of preparing her child's meal but the responsibility is still hers for the luncheon must supplement the other two family meals and make a perfect whole.

When a lunch box must be packed every morning the menu should be planned the day before in order to avoid a mad scramble at the last minute. Keep heavy wax-paper, paraffin cups with covers and paper the packing will be as easy as possible. Sandwiches, a hot soup or drink, raw vegetables such as celery and radishes, fresh fruit, cookies, cake cups, dates, a piece of milk chocolate—these foods are easy to pack and stay attractive under trying conditions.

One hot food should always be included in a child's luncheon so that easy and rapid digestion will take place. This is very simple to manage when the meal is eaten at home and quite as easy to accomplish with the aid of a vacuum bottle when the lunch is carried to school. Of course the choker is limited to cream soups and hot milk drinks when the thermos bottle is used.

If you are planning to renovate last year's clothes by drying them before making over, be sure that the fabric is thoroughly cleaned before trying to change its color. Dye will not cover dirt or grease spots. Carbon tetrachloride is an effective agent for removing grease from silk

Quite a novelty was discovered during the alterations at the City Pigst property on Fourth Avenue east recently, when copies of the Edmonton Bulletin, Toronto Globe and Wainwright Star, all dated 1910, were found behind a partition of the older portion of the building. Even at that date, wars and rumors of wars filled the headlines!
